

10 Easy Ways for Companies to Collaborate with Schools

1 Create Day in the Life Content (& other videos)

Create your Jebbee Page. Then post content to talk about real careers, career paths, and day-to-day work to get in front of students.

- Builds early awareness (“I didn’t know that job existed” moments)
- Humanizes your company

2 Job Shadow Days

Find students on Jebbee, or through the school, who align with the careers you have. Invite students to spend a day (or even a few hours) observing and learning from employees.

- Low lift, high impact
- Gives students real-world context quickly

3 Internships & Apprenticeships (even micro-internships)

Offer short-term, structured experiences—starting as early as high school.

- Builds job-ready skills
- Creates a direct hiring pipeline

4 Mentorship Programs

Pair your employees with students for ongoing guidance.

- Develops soft skills, confidence, and career direction
- Builds long-term connection to your company
- Gives your employees purpose beyond the job

5 Project-Based Learning Partnerships

Collaborate with teachers/professors to bring real business challenges into the classroom.

- Students work on actual problems your company faces
- You get fresh ideas + early access to talent

6

Curriculum Input & Advisory Boards

Sit on school or college advisory boards to help shape what's being taught.

- Aligns education with workforce needs
- Helps close the skills gap at the source

7

Virtual CareerDay Participation

Jebbee partner companies can give access to the school/students for your employees to be chosen for Virtual CareerDay interviews. Juniors and Seniors need people in their chosen career-line, but often don't know who to ask.

- Builds brand awareness early
- Mass Mentoring - allows the same content to be shared with other students at other schools, leveraging your message and expanding your brand.

8

Teacher Externships

Bring educators into your company during the summer to experience your work firsthand.

- Teachers take real-world insights back to the classroom
- Scales your impact across hundreds of students

9

Competitions & Sponsorships

Host hackathons, or career-focused competitions.

- Attracts motivated students early
- Positions your company as an opportunity provider

10

Early Talent Pipeline Programs (Structured Pathways)

Create a multi-year pathway: exposure → experience → internship → hire.

- Most strategic, long-term approach
- Can reduce recruiting costs and improve retention significantly
